In another column we publish a translation of the 'Imperial Decree in which the proclamation issued in the names of P'ENG YU-LIN. CHANG CRIE-TUNG, CHANG SHU-SHENG, and Ni WEN-WEI, inciting the Chinese to poison the French, &c., is condemned and the officials above named censured. It was reported, soon after the publication of the proclamation mentioned, that the document was a forgery, but this denial was not made officivily, and we presume that the Imperial has asked $15,000 for the lighthouse and $32,000 Government would hardly have gone the length of censuring the four high officials whose names were appended had the product mation not been genuine. Be that as it may, whether the proclamation was genuine or not, it is very satisfactory to find the Peking Government condemning such acts as incitement to poison and also the attempt to stir up trouble in other countries where there are Chinese colonists. After declaring that there was nothing objectionable in appealing to Chinese patriotism generally, the Decree proceeds to say that "the employgapore, Penang, and other places which are. not under our jurisdiction is likely when it becomes noised abroad to be misinterpreted and to be distorted in process of transmission from one to another, possibly giving rise to trouble." around Vladivostock is good, and exectlent corn might be raised, while cattle would thrive there without difficulty. What is wanted is a population. Autocratic though the Russian Government is, it cannot apparently carry out a scheme of colonisation either rapidly or effectively. The reason for this lies partly in the want of enterprise in the Russian people and partly in the spathy which centuries of despotic rule has induced. Distance has not prevented the English and German races seeking their fortunes in Australia; cold has not checked their steady influx into the great. Canadian Dominion; the hostility of warlike natives has not deterred them from settling in South Africa; and heat and fevers have availed not to stay their advance in tropical lands. New I were old friends and croines; and, what was really wonderful, their respective what was really wonderful, their respective what was really wonderful, their respective had rather comented the lutimacy by the soften the soften.

A proposed a special state of the said less and the idea finehed across bis mind that was really wonderful, their respective what was really wonderful, their respective had rather comented the lutimacy by the soften the foolish what was really attained for the soften.

A proposition was a light of the said less and the idea finehed across bis mind the foolish what was really wonderful, their respective where had tagher comented the lutimacy by the soften the soften. An instant's reflection would have convinced thin of the foolish what you will have convinced thin of the foolish.

Mr. Battledore's apprehensions reached

White Spiritage, Spories of the proposal states and the idea finehed not having into small pieces.

Supposed Spiritage, Spories of the proposal states and the idea finehed not not received the latter, white per ploud states and the idea finehed across bis mind the foolish what you wish to white Spiritage, Spories of the said less and the idea finehed across bis mind the foolish what you wish to white Spiritage, Spories of the said spories of the said less and the idea finehed across bis mind the foolish spories of the said less and the idea finehed across bis mind the foolish spories of the said less and the idea finehed across bis mind the foolish spories of the said less and the idea finehed across bis mind the foolish spories of the said less and the idea finehed across bis mind the foolish spories of the said less and the idea finehed across bis mind the foolish spories of the said less and the idea finehed across bis mind the foolish spories of the said less and the idea finehed across bis mind the foolish spories of the said less and the SHIPPING IN THE CHINA WATERS.
